

NZ Post container modification

Boxman Group completed this modification in November of 2011 at our Wellington depot.

New Zealand Post

The brief from the client, New Zealand Post, was to create a small compact post box facility on a very small piece of land beside a service station in Miramar, Wellington.

The solution had to enable easy external access from a user perspective, in addition to being functional for NZ Post internally.

Boxman created the solution with a used 6.1m (20ft) container with side wall modification to allow post boxes to be fitted, and a side door access for NZ Post staff. The container was insulated, lined, and included electrical fittings for lighting and accessories.

This project was relatively simple, fitting boxes inside a box, however it is another example of the innovation employed at Boxman to achieve suitable outcomes for its customers.
